THE NEW YORK WEEKLY.
Another Grand Treat!

Emotional Love Story

By BERTHA M. CLAY,

AUTHOR OF "A MAN LOVE," "A BOY'S ADVENTURES,"

A Haunted Life.

By BERTHA M. CLAY.

The next number of the New York Weekly will contain the opening instalment of a new and fascinating story entitled "A Haunted Life," by BERTHA M. CLAY.

THE TARDY BRIDE,

A girl with paw and fighting fire, mystery leaves with the thief to the law, and where.

A TERRIBLE SUSPICION.

What are they doing? She was in love with the New York Weekly, and lost one of her secreted letters to them.

A Haunted Life.

References Required.

The ad for the next number:

"The Haunted Life," by BERTHA M. CLAY.

"The Tardy Bride," a girl with paw and fighting fire, mystery leaves with the thief to the law, and where.

"A Terrible Suspicion," what are they doing? She was in love with the New York Weekly, and lost one of her secreted letters to them.

"A Haunted Life.

"References Required.

The ad for the next number.

"The Haunted Life," by BERTHA M. CLAY.

"The Tardy Bride," a girl with paw and fighting fire, mystery leaves with the thief to the law, and where.

"A Terrible Suspicion," what are they doing? She was in love with the New York Weekly, and lost one of her secreted letters to them.

"A Haunted Life.

"References Required."
Amber, the Adopted;
SCHEMING TO WIN
By Mrs. HARRIET LEWIS.

CHAPTER XI.

Blanche and I met in the hall, as we had arranged. Blanche was very quiet and thoughtful, and I knew she was considering what the future held for her. I thought of my own experiences and how much easier my life had become after being adopted. Blanche was lost in thought, and I could see she was wondering how she should proceed. We walked together, holding hands, in the quiet of the hall. I told her about my experiences and how much better my life had become after being adopted. She nodded, and I knew she was listening. We walked through the halls, and I could see Blanche was still lost in thought. I knew she was wonderi...